In 1547 Orme began work on the king's tomb. Under Henry II he was promoted until he finally became supervisor of all royal buildings. In this capacity he directed the work on the châteaux of Fontainebleau, St-Germain-en-Laye, Madrid etc., and had at the same time to investigate the character of the service which had been.

Cornwall and the Cross is the second in a new series of paperbacks, profusely illustrated in colour, from the Victoria County History, and is based on the larger survey that Nicholas Orme wrote in The Victoria Country History of Cornwall vol. II (2007). The paperback aims to open up local history to a wider audience. It comes.
